

TOWN OF SPRINGDALE

Kudos to Springdale Public Works Department

I live on the Anasazi Plateau in Springdale, which I believe is the largest subdivision in the Town. On Saturday morning (September 20), I received a call from Joe Barker, Public Works Utility Supervisor, saying that there was a leak in the water line at the bottom of our water tank road. He wanted me to let residents of the Plateau know that the line would be repaired during the night on the next Monday, September 22. Repairs were scheduled overnight to avoid inconveniencing residents.

On Sunday morning at 7:30 a.m., I received a call from Joe as well as a text from Lt. Shafer of the Springdale Police Department saying that the water line had broken, flooding the road and making it impassable. The water tank that serves the subdivision had emptied, leaving the residents without water and destroying a section of the road. The line would have to be repaired immediately.

The Public Works Department went to work, locating the break, draining the water, and even convincing Scholzen Products to open so they could get the necessary parts to repair the 10-inch line. It was a difficult repair, but at 11:30 p.m. it was completed. The crew then stayed and worked through the night, backfilling the road to reopen it.

America250 Springdale

Springdale is enthusiastic about its involvement in America250 events, volunteer initiatives, and service projects, including those that combine these elements. The founding of our nation in 1776 was not just a political revolution; it was a collective community endeavor. Ordinary citizens united in pursuit of shared ideals, liberty, equality, and the establishment of a government by and for the people. This same spirit of service continues to inspire us in our communities today.

As the United States approaches its 250th anniversary, America250 Utah encourages all Utahns to uphold our foundational values through action, fostering unity, service, and civic engagement to strengthen our communities. Below, we've listed America250 opportunities within Springdale and Utah.

Invasive Species Removal

The Town is gearing up to remove invasive species, Russian olive and tamarisk, along the Virgin River watershed, tributaries, and side washes. The removal of invasive species and planting of native species is free for property owners. Property owners are encouraged to reach out to Staff if they believe they have Russian olive or tamarisk trees on their property. Property owners will be notified in advance before crews begin the process of removing invasive species from their property.

Learn more about this project and how we can work together to care for the health and safety of the Virgin River and side washes at <https://springdaletown.com/561/Invasive-Species-Removal>

The purpose of this article is to give a shout-out to the Public Works crew who put their personal lives and plans aside in order to get the repair done and restore access to the west end of the Anasazi Plateau. The team consisted of Rob Totten, Joe Barker, Bronson Cottam, Greyson Wolsleger, and Christian Gubler. The Council member assigned to the Public Works Department is Randy Aton, and he is fortunate to work with an outstanding team.

I also want to give a shout-out to Jeremy Chancy, Erik Ryberg, Pat Campbell, and Jerry Healy, who all played a part in getting the initial word out to the residents, monitoring the situation and providing updates throughout the repair process. They brought lunch in for the crew around noon and Oscar's Cafe (Hank Moore) provided dinner at the site.

Finally, the residents of the Anasazi Plateau demonstrated resilience and teamwork in getting through a difficult 23-hour period without culinary water (and many without access in or out of the subdivision). I didn't hear any complaints; I only saw texts with people offering drinking water to others that needed it and even offering chlorinated water from their swimming pools for flushing toilets.

This was a fantastic example of how the Springdale community handles adversity, and I'm proud to be the Mayor of the Town.

WASHINGTON COUNTY HAZARDOUS WASTE CLEAN UP DAY

Location: Washington County Landfill 330 N Landfill Rd
Washington, UT
Date: Saturday October 11, 2025
Time: 8am-1230pm

Dispose of all Hazardous Waste Correctly NOT IN YOUR TRASH OR RECYCLE CONTAINER

Chemical products in your home are deemed Household Hazardous Waste (HHW) once they are no longer in use or have passed their expiration date. The potential for their ignitability and toxicity make them hazardous to us and those around us. HHW is not regulated by the Utah Department of Environmental Quality or the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), which is why the Washington County Solid Waste District has taken a proactive approach in seeing that the residents of Washington County have a method to properly dispose of their hazardous materials. We offer our residents Household Hazardous Waste Collection Days throughout the year for your convenience. Thanks for using this service.

Types of Material Accepted

Only on Hazardous Waste days do we accept the following: aerosol cans, bulging batteries, fluorescent light bulbs, fuel, herbicides, medical waste, paint, paint thinners, pesticides, propane, and paint supplies.

This service is free for Washington County residents bringing materials from their homes. However, there is a charge for tires.

Contact us for more information on the charges or any other questions you might have.
